.- The very fine card arranged by Mr. Crickmore this afternoon brought out a crowd that in point of numbers would have been considered a few years ago a holiday gathering. There were at least 7,500 people present.

The features were the Toboggan Handicap and the Larchmont Stakes

In the former stake Ballyhoo Bey was named to make his first start in two years, and this invested the race with renewed interest. The weather was superb and could not have been made to order in better style. The track was fast and dry, Nash Turner, just on from the West, rode King Hanover for Mr. Whitney in the first race.

miral W. T. Sampson died at 5 o'clock this afternoon. The end came painlessly after a period of profound unconsciousness.

WASHINGTON, May 6 .- Rear-Ad-

Admiral Sampson had a hemorrhage of the brain this morning and his condition became critical. At 2 o'clock this afternoon Admiral Sampson was unconscious and breathing laboriously. His physician and he was failing rapidly and that the end might come at any moment. For several days past the Admiral has been growing weaker and the hemorrhage this morning brought on the sinking spell.

The Admiral was a sufferer from aphasia, and his condition had long been regarded as hopeless.

Several months ago it was thought he was dying, but he railied and developed considerable strength.

The doctors attending him, however, held out no hope of his ultimate recovery.

Admiral Sampson's breakdown began to be apparent about a year after the end of the Spanish war, but he did not retire from active duty till less than a year ago, when he left the Portsmouth Navy-Yard, of which he was Com-mandant, and went to Washington.

LABORER'S SON WHO BECAME AN ADMIRAL

William Thomas Sampson, born Feb. 9, 1840, was of humble origin. His 9. 1840, was of humble origin. His father was a laborer in Palmyra, N. Y., and young Sampson, the eddest of eight children, dug in the ditches with his father, and so did most of his studying at home, having little time for school. In 1857 a cadetship at Annapolis was refused by several of the wealthy lads of Palmyra. Sampson took it and manufacted first in his class. He was graduated first in his class. He was made a lieutenant in 1862 and first saw was sunk by a torpedo in Charleston Harbor in 1865.

In that emergency he showed the coolness that afterward distinguished him. His feet caught in the boarding net as the ship sank. He waited until Telegrams of inquiry and sympathy continue to arrive in large numbers at Castle Loo.

He hext became Onief of Ordinance as a captain and was considered the greatest ordinance expert in the navy. He was at the head of the court that investigated the blowing up of the Maine in Havana bribor and again demonstrated his coolness.

President McKinley chose him as a commander of the fleet in Cuban waters at the breaking out of the Spanish war. He was moved to that position over the heads of many men of higher rank, for the was only a captain. It was believed the controversy that was waged so flereely after the war as to who was entitled to the overtice of the Santiago victory had much to do with the failure of his health.

He was retired as a Rear-Administ in Pebruary last.
